

Imagine a job where you could bring your whole self to work each day, that welcomes your passion along with your beliefs and commitments to change the world. Are you inspired by retreat centers and their vital place in our world?

Kirkridge Retreat and Study Center is searching for an associate director to add to our team. The associate director will be responsible to: participate fully in the shepherding of this special place extending radical hospitality to all who come; participate in the daily work of running a retreat center and carry the oversight of all communications, marketing and social media. Working with the executive director and the governing board, the associate director will participate in the development of new programs, partnerships and the setting of new directions for the organization. You will be provided with salary, housing, and benefit options.

Questions call or contact Executive Director, Jean Richardson. jeanr@kirkridge.org, or 610-599-4604. Interested in applying? Send letter of interest, resume and three references to Janet Lewis. janetl@kirkridge.org. Due January 23, 2019.
